

History Departments and Cultural Institutions Départements d'histoire et institutions culturelles

Once again your department chairs have submitted their annual overview of comings and goings, awards and events. We present this information in the language(s) of choice of each institution, and we include almost every tidbit of information received. As readers will quickly note, some places have more news than others. Frequently this is tied to the size of a history department and other times it is tied to what has been identified as newsworthy by a particular chair. Regardless, we hope you will be accepting of the incredible variety in the reports that follow and think about what you would like your institution to include next year. We really do want to recount the news of every department in the country.

Encore une fois, vos directeurs de département nous offrent une vue d'ensemble de leurs allées et venues, prix et activités. Nous publions les renseignements que les institutions nous ont données, et ce, dans la(es) langue(s) de leur choix et nous avons inclus toute l'information soumise, dans ses plus petits détails. Comme les lecteurs pourront le constater, certaines institutions ont plus de nouvelles que d'autres. Fréquemment, c'est une question de l'importance du département d'histoire ou bien de ce qui a été identifié comme étant digne d'intérêt par un directeur en particulier. Peu importe, nous espérons que vous approuverez cette variété incroyable dans les rapports qui suivent et réfléchirez à ce que votre institution aimerait soumettre l'année prochaine. Nous désirons sincèrement relater les nouvelles de chaque département d'histoire au pays.

Our history program will host Algoma University's Hayes-Jenkinson Lecture for 2014-2015 to be held in January 2015. Faculty numbers are in decline, we have requested permission to fill one of the history retirements from last year but it is not clear that we will be able to proceed. The number of declared history majors has declined slightly.

Mount Allison University

William Lundell is the Chair of the History Department. The department looks forward to marking in November the centenary of the outbreak of the First World War by sponsoring a lecture by Gwynne Dyer: 'What the First World War taught us.' Elaine Naylor (American) published in May with the McGill-Queens University Press her book: Frontier Boosters: Port Townsend and the Culture of Development in the American West. Marie Hammond Callaghan (Canadian and European Women and Gender) has replaced Elaine Naylor as Director of the Women's and Gender Studies program. Kathleen Lord (Modern Canadian) was awarded a sabbatical leave for the autumn 2014 term with Robert Cupido acting as her replacement. The department continues to build its library collection with generous support from the Morton Memorial Fund.

Staffing remains constant at eight tenured faculty: one American, one Asian, two Canadian, and three European historians, plus an historian holding a joint-appointment with Women's and Gender Studies whose interests are transatlantic. Courses in Greek and Roman history are taught by equivalent of one historian posted to Classics. Two History faculty teach courses cross-listed with Religious Studies. Overall the department's undergraduate enrollments have held steady. 2014 saw, relative to 2013 numbers, a slight increase in the number of honors degrees awarded, a modest decline in the number of majors, and a modest increase in the number of minors graduating. Early indications are that the number of 2015 graduating honors, majors, and minors will match or nearly so 2014 performance.

Mount Royal University

Jennifer Pettit is the Chair of the History Department. Unlike in previous years in which the department expanded significantly as part of Mount Royal University's transition to a university, this past year the department has concentrated on building the history program. As Chair, Dr. Jennifer Pettit continues to help oversee these developments. This work builds upon that of previous chairs such as Dr. Thomas Brown, a past president of The Canadian Society for the History of Medicine, who retired in 2014. Due to budget cuts it is unlikely that his vacant position will be filled though the department did add two art historians in 2014. On a more positive note, applications to the program are rising (once again due to the high number of applicants students were placed on a waiting list), a program review is underway, and the department has been involved in a number of interesting initiatives that are detailed below.

Conferences, etc.

In September of 2014 Mount Royal University hosted the third Under Western Skies conference during which issues related to the environment, community and culture in North America were discussed during fifty-five interdisciplinary panels, seven keynote addresses by individuals such as Justice Thomas Berger and the founding members of the Idle No More movement, and a number of other activities such as the reading of a new play and an interactive exhibition on the Berger Inquiry. With registration numbers in the hundreds, the conference is now known as a key place for scholars, artists, citizens and students from around the world to examine environmental issues.

February 19-21, 2014, Mount Royal University hosted Understanding Atrocities: Remembering, Representing and Teaching Genocide. History was well represented at this three-day multidisciplinary conference that brought together leading experts, emerging and established scholars in the field of genocide studies, as well as undergraduate and graduate students, secondary school teachers, community members, and policy makers in order to share new scholarship and new teaching perspectives on the global, transhistorical problem of genocide. Keynote speakers included Andrea Smith, awarding-winning author of Conquest: Sexual Violence and American Indian Genocide (2005), and Valerie Hebert, author of Hitler's Generals on Trial: The Last War Crimes Tribunal at Nuremberg (2010). Allan Rock, University of Ottawa President and former Canadian Ambassador to the UN, and Lloyd Axworthy, University of Winnipeg President and former Canadian Minister of Foreign Affairs, shared their political and academic encounters with genocide in a plenary roundtable discussion examining Canada's role in genocide prevention. The conference also included a special screening of "Never Again: Lessons from the Holocaust," a film from University of Tennessee historian John Swanson that explores how the Holocaust is being taught in high schools and universities. And throughout the conference, MRU hosted the international travelling exhibition "Names Instead of Numbers," containing a brilliantly displayed selection of 24 biographies from the Dachau Concentration Camp Book of Remembrance. (<http://www.gedaechtnisbuch.de/namen-stattd-nummern/english/index-engl.html>)

Commemorating the Komagata Maru / Celebrating the Century brought together undergraduate and graduate students, tenure-track and tenured scholars, professors emeriti, writers, directors, and members of the Sikh community. The conference provided a forum for new research and new perspectives on the Komagata Maru, and on Sikh engagement with and within Canadian cultural, ethnic, and religious diversity. The conference actively involved members of the Sikh community, including community leaders and organizers, public figures, and creative writers. Because of this, it had a real and tangible impact beyond the confines of the Academy while at the same time maintaining its scholarly emphasis. The three day programme consisted of twenty-two presenters from three continents (North America, Asia, and Africa). Notable among these participants were

Professor Emeritus Hugh J.M. Johnston, author of the authoritative and newly-revised The Voyage of the Komagata Maru; Professor Ali Kazimi, writer, director, and cinematographer of the award-winning documentary film "Continuous Journey"; Shauna Singh Baldwin, award-winning author; and Pardeep Singh Nagra, Executive Director of the Sikh Heritage Museum of Canada. The programme included two special evening presentations - a screening of "Continuous Journey" followed by a discussion with Ali Kazimi, and a talk by Shauna Singh Baldwin on "Choosing to belong: our rights, our responsibilities" - and an exhibit from the Sikh Heritage Museum of Canada.

A number of upcoming events are also planned including presentations by Wab Kinew and Prof. Robert Buckingham, and once again historians from the department will take part in the Holocaust Education Symposium hosted by MRU. In its 30th year in 2014, the Symposium brings local high school students to Mount Royal to learn about the Holocaust; over 40,000 students in Calgary have taken part in the program.

Student Activities

This spring, the MRU Students' Historical Society will once again host the Foothills Colloquium in Undergraduate History at Mount Royal University and Fort Calgary. This year's conference will take place from Thursday, April 30 to Friday, May 1, 2015. The Call for Papers arrives on 14.11.14. Please encourage your history undergraduates to attend. They can also follow the event on Twitter @FoothillsColloq.

In June 2014 a team of undergraduate history students travelled from Calgary to the Provincial Archives of Alberta in Edmonton with Professor Jarett Henderson. Upon their arrival at the Provincial Archives of Alberta the students were greeted by archivist Karen Simonson who gave the students a behind-the-scenes tour of the collection. The students spent the remainder of the week researching in the archives where they examined government reports, court records, journals, microfilm, the minutes of various associations such as the Y.M.C.A./Y.W.C.A., Methodist Church records, and a bounty of other sources in an effort to gather materials on the history of Mount Royal and early 20th century Alberta. The documents that the students gathered have been incorporated into Mount Royal's "Introduction to History" course which teaches history majors how to conduct historical research and think like an historian. This initiative was generously funded by the Faculty of Arts Innovation Fund.

A number of other initiatives are underway as well. The Honours program continues to flourish and 2014 will mark the publication of the second issue of the Mount Royal Undergraduate Humanities Review, a peer-reviewed online journal that publishes essays and other kinds of intellectual work by MRU students in areas such as history, philosophy, women's studies and indigenous studies. Interest in travel/field courses continues to be strong. Students in the department took part in a Treaty 7 field course in which students met with elders, participated in various cultural activities and travelled to a variety of local nations. In spring history travel courses to New York and the southern United States are also taking place. In addition, a number of local heritage institutions such as Heritage Park and the Military Museums of Calgary hosted undergraduate history interns.

Scholarship

Faculty members have published a number of articles and monographs and received a number of research grants. For instance, Dr. Jarett Henderson edited a special issue of Histoire sociale/Social History, and Dr. Carmen Nielson published Private Women and the Public Good: Charity and State Formation in Hamilton, Ontario, 1843-96.

Okanagan College

Howard Hisdal is the Chair of the History Department. Dr. Chris Clarkson, former Chair of the History Department, is off on long term study leave for a year to examine post-1945 federal prison reform, education, and rehabilitation programs. To replace him we have hired Dr. Jim Wood, Canadian history specialist, and author of Militia Myths: Ideas of the Canadian Citizen Soldier 1896-1921. Professor Howard Hisdal, CD, MA, is the new Chair of the History Department.

Okanagan College just finished hosting its Sixth Annual Pow Wow. The economic troubles of the early 1990s are being felt with the lower birth rates reflecting themselves in a smaller student population twenty years later. Over all the Okanagan Valley region is growing in population as Northern BC depopulates. Kelowna is now the biggest city in the BC Interior with 30,000 more people than Kamloops and a larger population than Victoria but it still does not make the CBC National weather map. USA Today has recently declared the Okanagan Valley second on a list of the ten best wine regions of the world with Napa Valley being rated number six. It is very pleasant being faculty at Okanagan College. We have wine at all our Faculty Association meetings along with wonderful meals from our Culinary Arts program.

We are stable with faculty membership but our Arts enrolment is down somewhat from last year. None of our history courses have waiting lists which is unusual because we have had waiting lists since 2005. That is when the split occurred with our North Campus becoming UBC Okanagan Campus and Okanagan University College became once again Okanagan College. Undergraduate numbers are declining for the second year in a row after eight years of rather spectacular growth since the re-establishment of Okanagan College in 2005. No new programs as of yet but some are just entering the planning stage.

UNIVERSITY of Prince Edward

University of Prince Edward Island

Susan Brown is the Chair of the History Department. Dr Edward MacDonald: Lieutenant Governor's Award, Heritage Canada - The National Trust, 2014. Dr Edward MacDonald: Publication of the Year Award, from Prince Edward Island Museum & Heritage Foundation, 2014, for Cradling Confederation: The Founding of the Confederation Centre of the Arts, Charlottetown. Charlottetown: Confederation Centre of the Arts, 2013. Dr MacDonald has been much in demand as a scholar and speaker at numerous 2014 events commemorating the Charlottetown Conference of 1864. Dr Sarah Glassford (sessional instructor) has been actively engaged in public history commemorations of WWI. In particular she has been sought out for by CTV, Canadian Press, and CBC radio for interviews on various aspects of women and WWI. Dr Glassford is currently co-editing a centenary series of blog posts for www.ActiveHistory.ca about WWI and its commemoration which reassess traditional narratives of Canada's involvement in the war. In March, 2014, the UPEI History Department hosted the 10th annual Atlantic Universities Undergraduate History & Classics (AUUHC) conference. Approximately 40 students from seven universities in the Atlantic region gathered to share their research with students and faculty.

Full-time appointments remain the same. Decline in sessional (contract, part-time) appointments. Undergraduates are declining. A proposal has been submitted to create a new program for Medieval Studies minor (pending approval) in conjunction with departments of English, Philosophy, Classics, Religious Studies and others.

St. Francis Xavier University

Donna Trembinski is the Chair of the History Department. Bonnie White was appointed on a limited term, Political Science and History. No new hiring was done beyond sabbatical replacements. modern Middle East. His research encompasses Iran, Turkey, and North Africa, focusing on histories of nationalism, everyday life, crime and the city. We are now stable after a period of significant growth (doubling of faculty complement). There is a slight decline in student enrollments for 2014-15. Applications to our Honours History BA program were significantly down this year (18% lower).

UNIVERSITÉ DE SHERBROOKE Université de Sherbrooke

Léon Robichaud est directeur du département d'histoire. Quelques activités sont en préparation afin de célébrer le 50e anniversaire de création de notre Département d'histoire. Le dynamisme d'une petite équipe renouvelée depuis quelques années se traduit par les publications récentes par M. Demers (Connected Struggles. Catholics, Nationalists, and Transnational Relations between Mexico and Quebec, 1917-1945), J.-P. Le Glaunec (L'armée indigène: La défaite de Napoléon en Haïti), T. Landry, dir. (Identités : Constructions, négociations, négations), et la parution prochaine par H. Bérubé (Des sociétés distinctes. Gouverner les banlieues bourgeoises de Montréal, 1880-1939).

Le nombre de professeurs se maintient. Après une baisse en 2012, le nombre d'étudiants au premier cycle est revenu cette année au niveau habituel, soit un peu plus de 45 nouveaux étudiants. Le nombre d'étudiants à la maîtrise continue de varier grandement. Après un début très lent, le programme de doctorat accueille cette année 4 nouveaux étudiants.

The department hosted the 2014 Berkshire Conference on the History of Women, under President Franca Iacovetta. Faculty members are increasing after a period when few retirements were replaced. In 2013-14 course and program enrolments held steady; this year there seems to be a slight decline in course enrolments at 2nd year level. A number of graduate program initiatives are in the planning stage.

Vancouver Island University

Timothy Lewis is the Chair of the History Department. Dr. Gordon Hak retired as of December 2013 and Dr. Katharine Rollwagen was hired to replace Gordon.

There were two new faculty publications of note:

Gordon Hak, The Left in British Columbia: A History of Struggle (Vancouver: Ronsdale Press, 2013) and Keith D. Smith, Strange Visitors: Documents in Indigenous – Settler Relations in Canada from 1876 (Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 2014).

Dr. Cheryl Krasnick Warsh was recently chosen to serve as the Executive Director of the Western Association of Women Historians. Faculty numbers have held steady at 7.25 for the last five years, but that is down from the departmental high of 9.25 that prevailed in the early 2000s. Student numbers have been gradually trending downward.
